Hi A,

Did you know aviation contributes around 3% of the world's total greenhouse gas emissions?

That's why we're proud to introduce Webjet's Sustainable Traveller Program, enabling travellers to take action on climate change by offsetting their share of carbon emissions.

Our program, delivered in partnership with Tasman Environmental Markets (TEM), gives you the power to make impactful change by supporting vital environmental projects across the globe.

So, how does it work? When you tick the Sustainable Traveller box at checkout, your contribution directly supports verified projects that work to remove greenhouse gas emissions from the atmosphere, or prevent future emissions from occurring.

Read on to find out more about the carbon offset projects you'll be supporting as a Sustainable Traveller!

Winds of Change

Winds of Change, India

Across India, wind farms introduce clean energy to the grid which would otherwise be generated by a coal-fired power station.

In addition to generating clean energy, the program has improved accessibility for locals, creating jobs and funding waterwells and immunisation programs.

Rainforest Rehabilitation

Rainforest Rehabilitation, Peru

The Nii Kaniti project works with 7 indigenous communities to conserve 127,000 hectares of threatened forest in the Peruvian Amazon.

The project will avoid the release of 2.5 million tonnes of carbon emissions by protecting the forest from logging, as well as generating income for locals and securing vital habitat for endangered wildlife.

Breathe Easy

Breathe Easy, Malawi

In Malawi, a significant percentage of energy needs, especially for cooking, are met by the burning of wood sourced through the unsustainable logging of native forests.

This project distributes efficient cookstoves which significantly reduce the amount of smoke produced during cooking, lowering the risk of respiratory, heart and eye disease.
